Beach Olympics

Enhance communication and develop unity

ENGLISH

CHECK!

Okinawa's unique nature stems from its subtropical, oceanic climate. It is home to world-class beaches with a dazzling contrast of blue ocean and white sand. On these beautiful beaches, this "Olympic" program encourages participants to communicate and develop team unity. The Beach Olympics is not a physical competition, instead it features unique games in which members leverage their own special abilities and work as a team to put on performances. We will customize the program to match your goals, participant affiliations, and desired results. This program is available throughout Okinawa, and we can assist your search for a venue.

Sabani Racing

Increase team solidarity

ENGLISH

A sabani is a traditional wooden Okinawan sailboat. A fantastic marine culture was developed due to the oceans surrounding environment, and it is known that Okinawans used to travel across the ocean to other countries. Sabani boats used to be the most widespread ocean travel tool among the locals. In this program, participants will first listen to information about sabani, then learn how to paddle and practice with a team in the morning. After lunch, they can take part in a sabani race.

*In case of bad weather, other programs such as an indoor rope-work workshop are available. Domestic travel insurance is available upon your request.

Project Adventure

Develop independence and cooperativeness

Project Adventure, referred to as 'adventure education', focuses on outdoor activities which combine psychological and experiential learning methods to develop both independence and cooperation. In the past, children used to have lots of opportunities to learn about friendship and relationships while playing in nature, but today there are not enough places or time for them. The Project Adventure program aims to provide a space for children to play in bountiful nature. Mangrove Canoeing

Think about the environment in natural mangroves

ENGLISH

'Mangroves' is a vernacular term for vegetation that grows in the brackish waters where salt water and fresh water meet. They are known for the high absorption of carbon dioxide, which is considered to be a major solution of global warming. The roots create a safety zone known as the "cradle of lives" for baby fish and shellfish, which preserves the marine ecosystem. There are four different types of mangroves on the main island of Okinawa. You can canoe around the mangrove forests with a local instructor to learn about wonders of the natural environment.

Traditional Karate Experience

Preservation, inheritance, and development of the cultural heritage

ENGLISH

Karate has its roots in Okinawa, but now there is a huge number of practitioners around the world. While serving its crucial roles to preserve, inheritate, and develop karate, The Okinawa Karate Kaikan is a unique and important facility which aims to spread the knowledge of Okinawa karate and serve as a home for the essence of karate.

The 'Special Dojo', which symbolizes Okinawa as the birthplace of karate, is the center of the venue. The Special Dojo Forecourt garden and Outdoor Training Area can be used for karate training sessions or other events. The 'Reference Room' (requires an admission fee) displays the history of Okinawan karate and includes an interactive area where you can learn some karate tips. Karate-related items and original products are sold in the shop and there is even a restaurant serving Okinawan food.

The dojo can be used for karate competitions. It contains facilities such as training rooms, seminar rooms, shower rooms and so on. The Okinawa Karate Kaikan welcomes Japanese and foreign fellow karate practitioners as well as tourists who have no karate experience.

Salt-Making Experience

Make salt and learn about Okinawan culture

Participants will boil concentrated Okinawan seawater to make their own salt. All salts will have different tastes even if they are made from the same seawater. This facility also offers salt plant tours, ceramic making workshops, and tours of the coral field. You can learn about the unique culture gifted by the beautiful ocean. In Okinawan dialect, salt is called maasu and Okinawan people have custom of carrying it as a good luck charm.

Eco-Learning Program

Discover the roles of living things and the power of nature

CHECK!

Today, the harmony between nature and humanity is vital to ensure a better future for the world. Many people have few chances to encounter real living creatures or to help restore river environments. In this program, participants will search for various living creatures in the wetland biotope and play games using plants and cards to learn about interrelations and mechanisms in the global environment. Participants will gain a deeper understanding of eco activities by removing accumulated red clay to restore the river and encountering various plants and living creatures.

Sango Batake Happy Plan

Learn marine eco system through coral

ENGLISH

This coral farm is a small, artificial reef built like a small sea on land. More than 50,000 coral groups grow rapidly in this small ocean, nearly covering the walls. The water is roughly 4 to 5°C cooler than the open ocean and the conditions remain stable. In this program, participants take a guided tour of the coral farm to learn about the eco-system, current status of Okinawan coral, and activities to increase the amount of coral. Both adults and children will broaden their knowledge about the Okinawan ocean.

Valley of Gangala Guided Tour

Touch the mysteries of nature

CHECK!

The Valley of Gangala was opened to the public in August 2008 for reserved guided tours only. Participants take part in these tours in the abundant nature of this subtropical valley. The tour includes Ufushugajumar, a large tree with countless roots dangling from a cliff top; Ikiga Cave, a sanctuary for hundreds of years; and caves under excavation, where stone age human traces have been discovered. In 2016, the world's most ancient fish hooks (from roughly 23,000 years ago) were discovered in this natural limestone cave, now the location of Cave Cafe. In the event of rain, the tour can be conducted as usual by using rain gear (it may be cancelled in the case of typhoons). Starting times for groups are determined based on the number of people (special plans are also available for private parties).

Forest Zipline

Learn in an eco park that promotes harmony with nature

ENGLISH

In this fantastically located forest adventure facility with ocean views, participants zip from tree to tree in safety harnesses. This activity was developed in France and reached Japan in 2006.

This program develops various types of skills and knowledge including self-awareness, safety-consciousness, the importance of following rules, and the mechanisms of the natural environment. Take this opportunity to remember how exciting and thrilling it was to climb trees when you were a child!

This facility is a unique eco park that promotes the importance of harmony with nature. For instance, some trees are pruned to encourage others to grow and weeds and diseased trees are cut down to allow more sunlight into the forest. Dyeing Experience

Learn coral dyeing techniques

ENGLISH

'Coral dyeing' is an original method of this venue, Ryusen. Anyone, from small children to elderly can enjoy using coral fossils to dye a wide range of items including T-shirts, towels, and tote bags. Three types of bingata base pattern are available. Participants use brushes to apply colors to the patterns printed on hemp cloth. Staff will explain the bingata dyeing process so even beginners can follow easily. Participants take their dyed items home to perform the final washing to fix the color.

*This dyeing is easy for anyone to do by following the instructions. Create a one-of-a-kind dyed item that will make a great souvenir of your trip to Okinawa or present for someone special.

Miyakojima City made a national 'Eco Island Declaration' on March 31, 2008, working towards the 'Environmental Century' which focuses on sustainable development for both humans and nature. The island is striving to become a model city, and both public and private corporations are researching effective ways to use limited resources and energy in harmony with nature. The purpose of this tour is to learn about a recycling-oriented society by visiting wind power, solar power, bio gas and bioethanol (E3) manufacturing facilities operated by the private sector and other facilities engaged in industry-academic-government cooperation. This tour is popular with companies and educational institutions.

Yaese Folk Entertainment

A Yaese Eisa program

Bingata Dyeing Experience

Experience a traditional dyeing method

Bingata is one of Okinawa's famous traditional dyeing methods. It is said that bin refers to all colors and gata refers to various patterns. In this program, participants start from coloring pre-drawn patterns called kataoki on a coaster or tote bag. They complete their items at home by letting them sit for three days and then washing them. Artisans provide instruction and support so anyone can easily take part. Take the dyed good to home and wash the adhesive away to complete after 3 days.
