▼ 1380 Nakasho, Izumisano City, Osaka

Arai residence is a wooden building built early in the Showa era. The residence was registered as Japan's registered tangible cultural property in 1999 as a representative Japanese-style architecture where good-quality materials were used and sophisticated carpentry skills were applied.

The residence is surrounded by a white earthen wall of the total length of about 100 meters. The Japanese style garden entertains visitors with the seasonal plants such as pine, cherry tree, crape myrtle, azalea etc. or lantern and huge stones as visitors pass through Daimon, the great gate. The inside of the building surrounding the garden in a square U-shape is full of high-quality technology at the time, such as sophisticated muntins of Akari shoji and a coffered ceiling, with the design based on the traditional Japanese-style architecture called Shoin-zukuri.

This brewery was established in 1921 in the scenic area with the remaining landscape of "Hinenosho" (historic remains of the medieval estate) recognized as Japan Heritage. It is the only brewery in Izumisano. There are 2 large wooden brewery buildings, built in 1921 and 1925 respectively. They have been producing Sake with the motto of "Quality comes before quantity". The brewery prefers to assign in-house brewing staff to take on the main role in brewing sake in the traditional manual way rather than hire sake brewing professional outside of the company. All the employees are involved in producing specific brand sake of high quality.

The brewery holds events, such as "Sake brewery festival", the biggest brewery event in Osaka prefecture, and "BBQ at Izumisano Sake brewery" with Izumisano local products as main ingredients. In addition, it provides a place for local community to rent a hall and take brewery tours.

《Aritooshi Kagura Dance》

This dance is based on the story of passing a thread through a crooked hole of a gem, which is widely known as the story of Aritooshi in Noh theater. According to the story, once upon a time the Tang dynasty in China gave Japan a difficult question to answer: Can you pass a thread through a gem with a convoluted tunnel inside? The problem was solved by tying a thread to an ant's narrow waist and letting it walk through a tunnel, hunting for the honey which had been spread around the exit hole in advance. Japan successfully escaped from the trouble thanks to an old man's wisdom. This is one of the most representative stories of filial piety.

Make a field trip to see how old fiber is recycled.

More than 2 million tons of fiber waste is produced every year. Almost 80 % is treated as regular waste when incinerated. We are trying to reduce such incinerated fiber waste by producing new fibers from fibre waste such as single materials as well as composite materials which are hard to be recycled into new materials or reborn goods. Recycled goods include yarn, sheet, felt, etc.

You have the opportunity to observe the color-recycle system by assorting color-wise used clothings, reclaimed wool, waste cloth and so on with all the relevant explanations given. Recycled goods are introduced. You can experience papermaking from recycled materials and textile making as well.

Let's reflect on the current mass production, mass consumption as well as SDGs(sustainable development goals)!

Kishiwada Castle

It is said that the five-story castle tower of Kishiwada castle was constructed by Hidemasa Koide, Lord of Kishiwada castle who was the uncle of Hideyoshi Hashiba (later Toyotomi). The castle tower was burnt down because of lightning in 1827 (Bunsei 10). Thereafter, it was not rebuilt during the period of Kishiwada-domain. The three-storey castle tower was revived in 1954 (Showa 29) by citizens' contributions and the current castle tower has remained since then. The castle tower can be used for weddings.

Tajiri Historical Museum (Airando House)

Tajiri Town

Tajiri Historical Museum (Nickname: Airando House) located in the northwestern part of Tajiri Town is the modern Japanese-western style building of Taishou period(1912-1926). Apart from the western style house constructed for the purpose of demonstrating the socioeconomic status of its owner, the Japanese-style house was used for daily life. The western-style house is in excellent harmony with the traditional Japanese-style house. The stained glass applied everywhere especially the interior of the building is a must-see item.

The western-style house is covered with porcelain tilings and its roof is based around gables so that its geometric configuration is distinctive as a whole. The features of the western-style house during Taishou period like stained glasses and brightly colored external walls with tilings can still be seen today.
